HAS BEEN ASLEEP FOR TWENTY YEARS

STRANGE CASE OF MARGUERITE ROYENVAL IN FRANCE, WHO IS SLOWLY WASTING AWAY.

An editor of the France, M. Gaston Stiegler, recently went to Thénelles in Alsace to see Marguerite Royenval, the woman who has slept since the month of June, 1883 that is to say, almost twenty years. M. Stiegler gives the following account of the case. Marguerite Royenval had a stroke of catalepsy after suffering a great shock, but it is not known whether or not up to that time she had manifested any signs of hysteria, although she seemed to be healthy. After the attack, Dr. Charlier treated her by metal therapy, which was the fashion at that time, then he treated her by means of electricity, but the results were nil. He attempted subcutaneous injections of atropine which was the only measure that had any effect. In this case sensibility returning to the limbs, but not to the head, this sensibility, on the other hand, being merely momentary. Nothing more could be done, although suggestions were made frequently. Many physicians believe that the sleeper understands what is said to her, and that it is simply impossible for her to respond, this being the opinion of Dr. Voisin of the Salpêtrière, who went to Thénelles during the last year. Up to the present it has been impossible to verify this hypothesis.

M. Stiegler describes his visit as follows: "I was ushered into a room and on a little bed behind the sleeper. How pale and thin and motionless she was, although she was not colorless, as one would naturally believe, and as a matter of fact, there was a slight coloration on the cheeks of this waxen face, and the lips were clearly red, these firmly closed lips which have not relaxed a single time for many years, which have not allowed a single drop of water to pass between them, and which have not let a word not even a sigh escape. The head was supported on a pillow and wore a white bonnet, tied by two bands under the chin, which allowed the hair, black and flat and separated by a part, to be seen. The eyelids, which one may open partly, thereby disclosing two white and glassy eyes, were closed. The body was flattened out under the covers and hardly took up the space which would be occupied by the body of an infant, although the woman looked fully 40 years, which is in reality her age.

"As a matter of fact, the patient has not eaten for many years past and she is now fed on peptone and milk containing the yolks of eggs. The breath did not raise the chest in the least, the respiration was not apparent, and while it evidently existed, it was so slight that it was impossible to perceive it. While the woman gradually wastes away, this phenomenon, without example in the history of medicine, can still last a long time, even for years."

SHORT SERMONS.

People who wish to do right need no law; those who are desiring the finest and best things do not feel the touch or pressure of any statute; they keep within the limits of the right because they have no desire to do otherwise.—Rev. Dr. Savage, Unitarian, New York.

Love is the greatest thing, not only in this world, but in all worlds. It is the master builder of the home and also of the human heart. It is the essence of true religion. Our human loves are but sparks of the great divine love.—Rev. Dr. Waters, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

To strive to find the best in life, to get at its real though half-hidden meaning, day by day faithfully looking always for the deeper, truer things of life cannot fail to bless us. We live to become something rather than to get something. Heaven cannot come to those wasting the life given to them for development.—Rev. A. E. Bartlett, Universalist, Manchester, N. H.

To preach the gospel and to minister to the poor is the mission of the church. God designed his church to be a great benevolent and charitable institution in the world. He evidently did not intend that his poor saints should be supported by civil governments or by secular charitable institutions. We do not hear of the early church casting off its poor saints upon the charities of the Roman government.—Rev. Dr. Holderby, Presbyterian, Atlanta, Ga.

TO SURVEY THE BAHAMAS

PARTY OF SCIENTISTS TO SAIL FROM BALTIMORE IN JUNE—INVESTIGATE LEPER COLONY.

The Geographical Society of Baltimore is preparing plans to make a systematic scientific survey of the Bahama Islands, says the Baltimore Sun. The staff will number fifty persons, and they will leave Baltimore early in June in a specially chartered vessel, fully equipped to serve as the home and laboratory of the party during its absence on the trip. The scientific staff will be divided into departments for the study of insular geology, botany, zoology, medical and hygienic conditions, climatology, physics, commercial geography and history.

Dr. George B. Shattuck, who was asked by the directors of the society to organize the expedition, will have charge of the geological work. He will have three assistants. Dr. W. C. Coker, professor of biology in the University of North Carolina, will direct the work in botany. Dr. Barton Blow, curator of fish in the National Museum, will investigate the fish of the seas around the islands. O. C. Glaser of the Hopkins department of biology will study the mollusks, and R. P. Cowles, fellow in biology, the caridite of the island. Dr. O. L. Fassig of the Baltimore office of the United States Weather Bureau will superintend the work in climatology. A person not yet named will direct the survey of the commercial possibilities of the islands. J. M. Wright of the Hopkins historical department will have access to the records of the islands and will prepare a monographic history of them. A. H. Baldwin, a Washington artist, will be the official illustrator.

Dr. C. A. Penrose will be given the position of director of the medical staff. This department will look into the sanitary conditions of the islands and will notice the effect of the climate on Americans. A leper colony will be investigated, as well as a colony of degenerates. These are descended from a band of American Tories who, at the close of the Revolution emigrated to the Bahamas. There they were surrounded by blacks and were compelled to intermarry within their own associates, this limitation in the choice of partners having resulted it is said, in a very low mental state among the descendants.

THE DRAMA.

It was a delightful presentation of Denman Thompson's "The Old Homestead," which Allan Dunn and W. D. Adams and those associated with them, gave at the Opera House last night.

It was a splendid house that listened to it, enjoyed it, and expressed its enjoyment in hearty and well timed applause.

The characters in this drama of home-spun life were all creditably presented. Some of them were exquisitely done or at least there were many exquisite touches. All that thorough attention to details, faithful study of parts, and intelligent direction can do was done, and the results were shown in a performance that ran smoothly from the rise to the fall of the curtain.

In the matter of scenery, stage settings and stage properties, the community is under a distinct obligation to Mr. Dunn and Mr. Adams. They were not content with the possible, but in setting their scenes, designed and executed everything necessary to make each scene characteristic. It is doubtful if there has ever been a stage setting in Honolulu before equal to that in the third act last night showing Grace church, Broadway, New York.

W. D. Adams, as "Joshua Whitcomb" the hearty, sterling, kindly New Hampshire farmer, with his keen New England sense of humor, his unspoiled native kindness and courtesy, his provincialism of manner but broad philosophy, his shrewdness and simplicity, played a difficult part in a way to win the admiration of the whole audience. Allan Dunn as "Cy Prime" and George Kunkel as "Seth Perkins," gave some deliciously acted bits of bucolic humor. Mrs. Carl Taylor as "Aunt Tilly" was charming. Dixie Ward as "Ricketty Ann" left little if anything to be desired in a characteristic part. Others whose worth deserves praise were Mrs. Allan Dunn as "Annie Hopkins," Miss Vida as "Nellie Patterson," Harry Newton as "Henry Hopkins," Bruce Hartman as "Happy Jack," Hugo Herz as "Frank Hopkins," Charles F. Branchfield as "John Freeman," E. Macken as Ed. Gauzy, St. John Batearsby as "Officer 39" and C. M. Abbott as "Judge Paterson."

Janet Waldorf, presented very pleasingly the part of "Mrs. Henry Hopkins."

"The Old Homestead" will be presented again on Saturday night and deserves another big house.

A PURPOSE PLAY.

Man's Enemy, at the Orpheum Theatre.

As opposed to problem plays, which have generally come to be regarded as strongly tinged with nastiness, Man's Enemy, to be presented at the Orpheum this evening, may be called a "purpose play" being constructed on the ground work of a great moral lesson.

The scenes are set amid the surroundings of "high life" and depict the slow but steady downfall of those who have become acquainted too early and too closely with Man's Enemy, Drink. The "Lion's Heart" in which Baby
